T. A. R. SONG COMPOSED AT HOME

The following song, written by Mrs. Thomas Lindsay and set to a stirring martial air by Herman Albert, will be sung by Mrs. Bushman at the ambulance fete at the Airborne Friday evening, when Tonopah is going to turn out en masse in order to send an ambulance to the front. You would be willing to give up any small comfort or pleasure in order to help some young man back to life and health and those who love him. In fact, you would count it a great pleasure. That is what you will be doing when you come to the ambulance fete, with this exception, that for every cent expended there you will get value received. The satisfaction of having helped in this glorious undertaking will be an added joy that will really cost you nothing. There will be the best of music and dancing, good things to eat, beautiful and useful things for sale, all reasonably priced, and more useful and beautiful things on punch boards and paddle wheels that may be won for 10 cents.

A hundred and twenty children, trained by Mrs. Bert Whitney, will march in complicated figures. Ahead of the marchers will be carried the American flag and the T. A. R. flag, the latter a gift to the organization from Mrs. John Kirchen and embroidered by Mrs. Chick Whitney. It is one of the handsomest and most beautiful flags ever seen in Tonopah. Next will come the large model of the ambulance savings banks, carried by four boys. The children participating in the march will carry flags and wear fancy caps which

SPLENDID WORK BY THE RED CROSS

To the casual observer the window of the Red Cross local chapter, dressed as it has been for the past two days, may mean but little; no gaily decorated China, no exquisite lines, no glittering silver are there to catch the eye, but just row after row of plain, neatly folded garments, white, all white, save where that insignia of love and mercy, the little red cross, stands bravely out. A fine sense of pride is in the hearts of those who have given their time and skill to help with the good work. More and more are needed, and it is the great hope of the chapter that those who have not yet done their bit in this work will start in soon. Not only during this dreadful slaughter are these garments to be needed, but long after, when the long period of convalescence begins, will there be a crying need for more fresh, clean linens.

The friendly rivalry has resulted this week in the honors being carried off by Mrs. Cal Shaw, who has attained such skill and speed that four completed, perfect garments in five hours were credited to her. Each week sees some new face at the machines, and after being there once there is no danger of these being no return, so interesting is the work, so crying the need for the garments. A large class is expected to avail themselves of the great privilege of being taught the making of surgical dressings under the direction of Dr. Anne de China, who will commence this work just as soon as the necessary materials arrive. Dr. de China is a member of the county and state medical association and fortunate indeed is the chapter to have been given her fine services in this cause. This is, of course, a very important feature of the work, and the headquarters of the national Red Cross lay special stress on the need of our turning out quantities of these dressings at our earliest opportunity.

FREDERICK LUND DIES OF NATURAL CAUSES

The body of Fred Lund was found dead in his cabin late yesterday afternoon. An inquest was held today by Coroner Dunsmuir and it was found that death was due to senility or some other natural cause. The deceased was a resident of Tonopah for a number of years. He was a native of Denmark. He is survived by a brother in Reno and a sister in Red Bluff, Cal. The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from Woonacott & Cavanaugh's undertaking parlors.

A NEW LYON IN TOWN.
A boy, weighing twelve and one-half pounds arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyon this afternoon, via the stork route. Mr. Lyon is at present an employee of the railroad shops at Goldfield. Mother and child are reported doing finely.

have been ordered for the occasion. Mrs. Lindsay's song, which follows, will be one of the features of the evening:

THE POOR WOUNDED SOLDIER.
There's a camp out in the desert.
Where the big mills grind all day.
And the sunsets—say!
They can't be beat, uh-hay!
And a regiment, Tar, Tar, Tara.
Where recruits enlist
Who are working for that poor dear wounded soldier!

Chorus.
Hurrah! Old Glory's proudly waving O'er our car!
The wheels speed fast and faster With good will from U. S. A!
Tara, Tara, Tar, loves each lad in this great war.
So send dear old "Tonopah" upon its way!

Shall I tell you what this regiment is doing? Yes, Oul, Oul, Sending o'er the sea And well equipped 'twill be.
An Am-bu-lance
For comfort planned Which we hope will aid our poor dear wounded soldier.

Chorus.
When you see "Tonopah" coming Uncle Sam's not far away, And he's there to stay!
That's always been his way 'Till the tyrant of autocracy's Demolished! Boom! Bing! Bam!
And your poor dear wounded soldier's debt he'll pay!

Chorus.
A letter containing suggestions for Christmas presents has been sent out to all local chapters of the Red Cross in order that no one of the thousands at army posts, at cantonments, at home or in the trenches, will be without some remembrance on this day of "Peace to All, Good Will to Men."

The chapter itself cannot spend its funds in this way, but it was suggested that money for the packages be raised through contributions of individuals. Through the efforts of the chapter, Mrs. Pete Booth was appointed to attend to this, and through her earnest endeavor the amount necessary, $150, for the hundred packages promised by this chapter, was assured her on the second day of her canvass.

The two requisite things, a khaki colored handkerchief and a writing pad 7x10 inches, are furnished by the headquarters at a very small figure.
These are required in order that all packages may be uniform, as the letter pad forms the base of the package. It was deemed unwise to ask for very much at this time owing to the demand made upon every one through the various channels, but any one who would like to donate any sum of money towards this cause may do so by sending his contribution to the Red Cross, 150 South Main street. One hundred packages were promised and one hundred have been assured, but if it be possible to make it two hundred, so much more for the brave boys at home and abroad. Necessarily the contents are limited, nothing perishable nor anything that could break being accepted, but there is a crying need for games, for dried fruits, for any little gift that will let the boys know that in heart and soul we are with them, that all our sympathies, our love, as well as our deep gratitude and faith, come to them with the gifts on this blessed day.

WIRING A TWELVE INCH GUN.

It Takes 117 Miles of Steel Tape to Make the Jacket.

According to the Millgate Monthly, no fewer than 117 miles of steel wire are wound on a twelve inch gun that weighs thirteen and a half tons. In appearance this wire, which is of the same quality as piano wire, resembles tape. It is a quarter of an inch wide and a tenth of an inch thick. It is tested to a breaking strength of 110 tons. The wire unwinds from a reel as the gun barrel revolves, and a tension of about fifty tons to the square inch insures mechanical accuracy in wrapping it round the gun.

Various parts of the gun receive different thicknesses of wire. At the breach of a twelve inch gun, where the chief strain comes, there are ninety-two layers, which give a thickness of nine and a half inches of wire, but at the muzzle there are only fourteen layers.
Over the wire the gunmakers shrink on steel rings at white heat. When they cool they contract and grip with immense force. The rifling of the barrel is an automatic process, an example of wonderful mechanical ingenuity. When the gun is finished experts test the accuracy of the rifling with plastic gutta-percha.

AMUSEMENTS

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS AT BUTLER

At the Butler today, Douglas Fairbanks, the popular exponent of the smile, appears in his second Ar-craft production, entitled "Wild and Woody," and discloses Douglas in which is conceded to be his greatest portrayal. For this film the strenuous actor-producer has been practicing stunts ever since last summer, and even while appearing before the camera in other productions his lariat was always nearby so that he could try new tricks whenever he had a little time to spare, and as a result of all this training the athletic screen favorite presents in "Wild and Woody" a remarkable display of cowboy accomplishments depicted in his own inimitable style, and even the many admirers of Douglas Fairbanks who are familiar with his dare devil stunts, will gasp at his new thrills disclosed in "Wild and Woody."

Starting in New York and ending in California, the picture introduces a variety of metropolitan and western scenes presenting the proper backgrounds to the story. As the youth of metropolitan birth who finally realizes his ambition to ride the plains of the West astride a bucking broncho, Douglas Fairbanks offers a wonderfully effective picturization of Jeff Hillington, whose visions of life in the West are based on the gaudy covers of 10-cent weeklies he has been reading since early childhood. There are thrills and plenty of them. You will like it, so come early prepared to enjoy yourself.
Pathe News will also be shown.

Tomorrow, the picture of the year, "The Flame of the Yukon," the great Alaskan story which is called a second "Spoilers."

SCHOOLGIRLS AS HEROINES.

Apparently They Are Considered Only by American Authors.

Scott never mentions a schoolgirl, says H. D. Sedgwick in the Atlantic.
Imagine Thomas Hardy fashioning a schoolgirl out of Wessex clay or George Meredith venturing to describe Diana of the Crossways in those early years.

Arnold Bennett would have created a little miniature old wife as Van Eyck and Memling paint ladies like miniature old men. H. G. Wells would depict her as incipient temptation to lead Mr.
Brilliant, for instance, into one of a dozen romantic adventures.

Galsworthy would try to fit her into an ethical system, into a niche of social justice or matrimonial ventures.
Mr. Howells, one may imagine, might have essayed the task, but he would have tried to meet the difficulty of getting the right values—as a painter dabs blues on yellows to make a green—by adding to a primness reminiscent of the "Vicar of Wakefield," a few delicate boyish touches.

As there is no such thing as a school-girl on the continent, French and Italian novelists do not mention her. Indeed, the schoolgirl, as we see her, is an American product and modern.

OUR LAGGING WORLD.
Its Motion Is Slowing, and the Day Is Growing Longer.

Our earth appears to be slowing down its spin. Two British astronomers who have finished a long study of the matter report that it now takes almost exactly three seconds longer for the world to turn over once than it took 100 years ago, and a century hence still another three seconds will have been added to the day.

At this rate Shakespeare had nearly ten seconds less in his twenty-four hours than has a modern dramatist.
William the Conqueror was handicapped a half minute in keeping up with his descendants. Julius Caesar was a whole minute to the bad, while even if he had lived to old age his life would still have been some twenty of our days short of what his biographers would have claimed for him.

Abraham and the early Pharaohs would have been still more pressed for time. The earliest men, say in the year 100,000 B. C., would have had no use for "How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day," for they had only twenty-three hours to do their living in and were really only seventy-six years old when they thought they had reached four score.—Edwin Tenney Brewster in St. Nicholas.
